[From The New York Tribune, March 22.] The Time Has Come.

There are those pretty high in authority, who say, "There is no use in offering terms to the Rebels, for their leaders will never submit to the authority of the Union, and they only negotiate to gain time." We do not believe this; but, if we did, it would not at all weaken our faith that the President should promptly and frankly appeal to the insurgents in deprecation of the further prosecution of their hopeless struggle, giving them substantial reasons for designing forthwith. Whatever may be the malignity or desperation of the leaders, it is clear that the masses do not share it. Davis' persistent efforts, and more emphatically his recent elaborate endeavor, to prove our Government implacably averse to There are those pretty high in authority. prove our Government implacably averse to prove our Government implacably averse to negotiation, and immovably resolved on universal confiscation and devastation, in-dicate beyond mistake the drift of opinion in Dixie toward submission and peace. What use in showing, to a people inflexibly resolved on independence, that our Govern-ment would grant no conditions? What motive for the recent attempt to open negotiations with Gen. Grant, if it were not deemed necessary at least to make a feint of negotiating on a lower plane than that of We fully credit our recent information from Richmond that Lee has confidentially apprised Davis that he cannot hold out against the hosts now gathering for his overthrow. We believe what is left of the Rebellion can and will be crushed any now; but we are utterly averse to the needless shedding of one drop of human blood. So long as War is essential to the life of the Republic, let War rage, though it whelm cities in blood and cover the land with rnins and ashes; but let Peace be secured at the very first moment compatible with the unity of the Nation and the freedom of all her people. As we have shown the Old World how a free people lavish their money and their blood when the existence of their country is at stake, so let us give her rulers a lesson in magnanimity and elemency to vanquished insurgents. Let not the victory of the Republic be stained by a single act of vengeance—by one wanton infliction of pain. Blood has flowed in rivers—let it flow on if the necessity shall be found still to exist; but let not the National ensign be stained by one drop shed to punish rather than to save.

What we would have President Lincoln do is simply to set lucidly and briefly before the Rebels the terms on which he would have them lay down their arms and submit to the National authority. These terms should convey his ultimatum on the following points:

. Union-Disunion. II. Amnesty-Treason. III. Confiscation-Property. IV. Emancipation—Slavery.
V. Reconstruction—State subversion. VI. Representation in Congress. It may be urged that some of these topics lie without the sphere of the Executive; but this is rather specious and technical than practical and vital. In matters of War and Peace, the President stands for the People, and may count with confidence on their ratification of his acts. Jefferson knew and avowed that he exceeded his constitutional powers in purchasing Louisiana, but he was eminently justified in taking the responsibility. So let the President proffer such terms as he thinks proper, and never doubt that he will be sustained in so doing. The country sighs for an honorable and lasting Peace, and such seems now within reach. Woe to the hesitancy or perverse counsel which shall prevent its "But suppose the rebel chiefs are still ob-We answer, they can damage nobody but themselves. Let President Lincoln now make a specific, circumstantial, magnanimous public overture, and the great body of Southern whites will insist on its accept-ance. They have long enough submit-ted to famine, nakedness, misery and death, at the beck of unchastened ambition. Proffer them an alternative, and they will be dragged or pushed no further in this wretched course. Only give them "a place whereon to stand," and they will speedily compel the leaders to submit or maintain the struggle unaided. Half the insurgents would come over at once: what could the rest do without them?

Once more we exhort the President to offer terms to the insurgents without delay. We do not mean to suggest or hint at any bases of pacification, since we desire that the conditions proffered shall be emphatically the President's own. We know that his heart is right, and we are confident that the terms it will prompt him to offer are such as the insurgents ought to accept—such as a large majority of them will choose to accept. Let not another day of carnage anticipate a proffer which is morally certain to paralyze the arm of Treason and quench the torch of Rapine. Let this long devastated land speedily rejoice in the unspeakable blessings of Peace!

Wool Trade. The eastern floods have cut off all word as to the wool markets. The telegraph with its usual definiteness reports it "dull," but no figures are given. The blockade has let The Ploughman of the 18th through, which gives the following relative to the Boston market for the week ending on the 16th :- "There has been a dull tone to the market the past week, and prices are again a shade easier. The transactions comprise 350,000 lbs. fleece and pulled at from 80c to $1 02, including some considerable lots of choice Ohio and Pennsylvania at $1 to $1 02, and Illinois at 80c per ib. About $1 is now and Illinois at 80c per lb. About $1 is now the outside price of fleece, with but very little wool on the market that could be sold at over 95c per lb. Some lots of extra pulled have been taken at 95c, and small lots at $1 per lb. In Canada combing wool there have been sales of 6000 lbs. at $1 25, and 5000 at $1 30 per lb., but this description is scarce. In foreign there have been sales of 250 bales Cape, Mediterranean, and South American at various prices as to South American at various prices as to quality, mostly Cape at 47 to 50c per lb.— Ohio Farmer, March 25.

Ladres in Paris wear dresses covered with artificial insects, butterflies, ligards, shells, &c., and Dutchesses and Marchionesses are to be seen at the theater in red satin and yellow velvet jackets ornamented with Chinese embroideries. The jewelry is equally extravagaat—gold broothes fashioned with four aces in black enamel and mounted as weathercocks, &c.

A Partisan Scheme Defeated. The attempt of the Republican Legislature of New York to create a new Supreme Court, in which to find place or some of their hungry lawyers, has been defeated by the people, to whom the proposition was submitted in the shape of an amendment to the Constitution. They have voted it down.—Ciscinnati Enquirer.

Inish Gallantray.—An Irish condriving past some harvest-fields summer, addressing a smart girl in sheaving, exclaimed: "Arrah, ling, I wish I was in jail for stealing
